

SSCC Theatre presents “The Importance of Being Earnest” Nov. 7-9

SSCC Theatre will present Oscar Wilde’s “The Importance of Being Earnest,” at 7:30 p.m. on both Friday, Nov. 7, and Saturday, Nov. 8, and at 3:30 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 9, in the Edward K. Daniels Auditorium on the Central Campus of Southern State Community College, 100 Hobart Drive, Hillsboro.

Jack Worthing (played by Owen Stanton) is a pillar of the community in Hertfordshire, where he is guardian to Cecily Cardew (Madison Hatfield), the pretty, 18-year-old granddaughter of the late Thomas Cardew, who found and adopted Jack when he was a baby. For years, Jack has pretended to have a troublesome brother named Ernest. In fact, Ernest is Jack’s pseudonym, an alibi that lets him go off and do as he pleases. No one knows that Jack himself is Ernest. Algernon Moncrieff (Adomas Fabin), cousin to the lovely Gwendolen Fairfax (Hannah Hengler), has begun to suspect the man he knows as Ernest may be living a double life, which he approves of, regarding it as normal behavior. Jack plans to propose to Gwendolen, despite her mother Lady Bracknell’s (Leslie Holmes) protestations. And once Algernon learns of Jack’s sister Cecily, he runs off to the country to propose to her, as Jack’s “brother” Ernest. The problems are resolved in an extremely charming and quite unexpected way as Jack and Algernon discover the importance of being earnest while answering to the name of Ernest.

“The Importance of Being Earnest” also features the acting talents of Mark Holmes, Bronwyn Jones, Tim Koehl and Eric Silcott.

“The Importance of Being Earnest” is directed by Rainee Angles and stage managed by Melissa Griffith, with production design by Rainee Angles and Abraham Martin, sound design by Benjamin Gullett, costume design by Laura Martin, and dramaturgy by Stormi Bledsoe. Fulfilling other crew positions are Brent Angles, Daniel Bragdon, Charlotte Brown, McKenzie Caldwell, Paula Campagna, Micah Claibourne, Micaela Countryman, Mary Cyrus, D.J. Griffith, Jessica Jacob, Sarah Jones, Matthew Mahoney, Jonathan Stewart, Heather Washburn, and Wyatt Wesch.
