TECH PREP

What is College Tech Prep?

College Tech Prep is a national educational reform initiative designed to bring about systemic change through a dynamic collaboration of partnering among business, industry, labor, secondary education, and higher education. Basically, College Tech Prep establishes a “two-year college prep track program in high schools with post-secondary education options for technical course work.”

Southern State is an active member of the Greater Cincinnati and the Ohio South Tech Prep Consortia. For more information about this consortium go to www.techprepswohio.org

Southern State currently has several agreements in place with local high schools and career centers. For more information about specific information relating to these agreements, contact Karen Davis at extension 2715.
