

New members welcome to join SSCC choir's 16th season

The Southern State Singers will begin rehearsals for the 2014-15 season 6 p.m. Monday, August 25, in Room 107 of Southern State Community College's Central Campus, 100 Hobart Drive, Hillsboro.

Under the direction of John M. Glaze, the Southern State Singers are preparing to begin their 16th season. The choral group is comprised of a core of dedicated community members, with Southern State students making up the remainder of the membership.

"It's for all who love to sing and enjoy the process of creating music together," said Glaze.

The Southern State Singers perform concerts throughout the school year, presenting holiday music, light classics, show tunes and more.

"Southern State has sponsored our community chorus for many years and Southern State Singers has represented the college in our community through the group's performances," said Glaze. "As we begin our new season, we invite all those with a love of the joy of singing to come out and join us. With Southern State Singers, you're only a stranger for a few minutes. We look forward to welcoming you!"
