Did you know... the Federal Trade Commission reports that the highest percentage of identity theft victims are between the ages of 20 and 29?

Identity theft harms its victims on many levels: the emotional duress of having one's financial security compromised, damaged credit and reputation, and the time required to prove the crime and one's innocence. On average, identity theft costs its victims 60 hours and $1,000 to recover their identity and credit record. Taking common-sense, preventive measures can help you avoid identity theft. However, even the best laid security measures can be foiled by a clever thief. That's when IMPACT's Identity Theft Prevention & Recovery services become an essential benefit.
